Soap Opera Fans, Romance Writers, and Romantics Ravidly Feed Here

Valentine's Day 2006 was the day this feeding frenzy began. A sizzling, new web site, RomanceReadersWeekly.com, was launched out of Kempton, Indiana.

For the first time ever soap opera fans, e-book authors both new and seasoned, and romance readers can all meet under the same roof and be fed romance. And fed they are.

With RomanceReadersWeekly.com's motto of "slaking your thirst for romance" the site manages to tease this desire with a "menu" served fresh Monday through Friday. Each and every day starts with our Daily Soap Opera. The reader tastes passion, heartbreak, and humor along with the current heroine before going on to the main course.

And what main courses RomanceReadersWeekly.com serves! Readers experience for themselves Monday's new e-book chapter. Tuesday's powerful Sweet Quickie. Wednesday's hot Spicy Quickie. Thursday's round-robin, Friday's Romance Readers Weekly Choice Award announced. Readers then feast on the archives Saturday and Sunday as they await another breathtaking week.

RomanceReadersWeekly.com strives to keep the authors and readers in constant touch with one another. Once becoming a member—both readers and writers—brainstorm together on the web site by developing merchandise and judging competitions.

The most coveted of all of the available competitions is the Romance Readers Weekly Choice Award. Given 52 times a year or once a week, this award is unlike any other award for print or e-books. New authors are discovered weekly!

RomanceReadersWeekly.com's owner, April Morelock explains how this award works, "Namely, it takes into account that in the electronic realm things shift and change so fast that great new authors can come from just about anywhere."

But wait there's more! E-book reviews, daily surveys, give-aways, more writing contests, special offers, 75% discounts on merchandise, and many more things just waiting for the romance reader. An introductory rate of just $4.95 per month awaits all new romance reader members. Sorry must be 18 or older to join.
